

Teaching Seminars

Academic Year 2006-2007

Neill Johnson, Schreyer Institute for Teaching Excellence, Penn State, How to Engage Your Students and Assess Their Learning at the Same Time, November 28, 2006.

Academic Year 2005-2006

Solomon Friedberg, Boston College, Teaching Development Using the Case Studies Method, November 1, 2005.

Panel Discussion, The Mathematician at the Liberal Arts College: Challenges and Rewards, March 27, 2006. David Bressoud, Rachel Hall, James Sellers

Academic Year 2004-2005

Dana Scott, Carnegie Mellon University, Teaching Projective Geometry via Computer Algebra, October 6, 2004.

Academic Year 2003-2004

Frank Morgan, Williams College, Double Bubble Conjecture Proved, October 2, 2003.

Linda H. Boyd, Georgia Perimeter College, no title, October 7, 2003.

Stan Wagon, Macalester College, Computers Change Our View of Teaching, October 23, 2003.

Deborah Ball and Hyman Bass, University of Michigan, Mathematical Definitions and the Learning and Teaching of Mathematics, December 2, 2003.

Richard Askey, University of Wisconsin, Some high school and early college mathematics which student should know or learn when they take calculus, March 2, 2004

Olympia Nicodemi, SUNY Geneseo, Why and How I Worry about Teaching, March 18, 2004.

Judy Walker, University of Nebraska, The Joy of Numbers, April 13, 2004.

Academic Year 2002-2003

Doris Schattschneider, Moravian College, Seeing, Believing, Proving in Mathematics, October 1, 2002.

Doug Arnold, IMA, Mathematics and Industry, October 25, 2002.

Dennis DeTurck, University of Pennsylvania, Mathematical Thinking through Web Programming in a Liberal Arts Course, November 12, 2002.

Larry Braden, St. Paul's School, Mathematics Teaching - Student Centered, Teacher Centered or Subject Centered, November 18, 2002.

Steven Krantz, Washington University St. Louis, Thoughts on Teaching Mathematics, February 25, 2003.

Bruce Reznick, University of Illinois, Chalking It Up: Advice to a New TA, April 29, 2003.